I went to see Dr. Joyner this morning and got repaired. Then I bought some collars at Brooks and lunched with Buck Crawford at the Union League Club. We talked investments.

Tonight I went to a dinner given in my honor at the Princeton Club by my 1919 classmates. There were about fifty of them there and I made quite a long speech on United States foreign policy.

We are staying at Ellen and Jim's very comfortable apartment at 280 Park Avenue.
